

In spite of the strict "Do not call" regulation at New Jersey, I am still getting lot of unsolicited calls. Some of us work from home. We have to be available to customers and employers on the phone during working hours. These calls make it very difficult to do our job at home. The mail is another menace. The junk mail, especially from the credit companies is the worst. I received more than 20 mails from Citi Bank just in one year asking to get their credit card. I do not know what they are acheiving doing that. We really need stricter laws and not make it easy for them to herass us this way. I appreciate your consideration.
